

A decorative border of small chocolate bars surrounds the text. The bars are arranged in a grid pattern, with the top and bottom rows being complete, and the sides having bars that wrap around the corners.

Should chocolate be advertised on T.V?

Chocolate is a nice treat now and then. Most people like it, both children and adults. So I think chocolate should be advertised on T.V.

If someone went to the shop and if they didn't know what chocolate was there, their friends might make fun of them for that.

If you didn't see the ads you wouldn't know what chocolate has less sugar than other chocolates.

The chocolate companies could go out of business because no one would buy their product and people would lose their jobs.

So I think I have persuaded you that chocolate ads should not be banned on T.V. By Jamie Flaherty
